Next

I am experienced and fully understand the whole process of creating a product from scratch; from concept idea to launch: mockup, design, prototyping, resource management, development, and deployment.

Ideally, I would like to join a company that creates own products and help to take them to the next level, but I would be also comfortable working for an agency on a project basis, as I love creating products in their initial stages and making them been brought to life contributing with my experience and creative solutions and ideas. I like the idea of making a real impact in the world through products.
